WIRELESS TELEGRAMS AS COMMERCIAL COMMODITY.

Vessels on Cunard and Other Lines "Information to Passengers."

New York, March 8.-Wireless telegrams are now a commercial commodity, and the vessels of the Canard and other lines quote rates for such messages in their "information for passengers" on the passenger lists. Persons who came in on the Lucania today were able to send messages to or receive them from their friends long before they landed. A number of such dispatches were exchanged, though the cost of 12 cents or more per word made them all very brief. The notice to passengers announcing the tariff for Marconigrams reads; From ship to Marconi Station, 6d per

Washington, March 8.-Speaker Henderson and Chairman Payne of the Ways and Means Committee and Senator Allison, member of the Finance Committee, called at the White House to-day, presumably in relation to the pending controversy over Cuban reciprocity. There was the most positive declination to discuss the purpose of the call.

It was said, however, that the President had in no way changed his attitude favor-able to reciprocity. In this connection there were renewed intimations of a special message which would clearly set forth the Pres-ident's views on the subject.
